Building a Network and a Movement for Social Justice
Vision

Communication for All

Mission

The World Association for Christian Communication (WACC) is an international non-governmental organization that promotes communication as a basic human right, essential to people’s dignity and community. Rooted in Christian faith, WACC works with all those denied the right to communicate because of status, identity, or gender. It advocates full access to information and communication and promotes open and diverse media. WACC strengthens networks of communicators to advance peace, understanding and justice.

Contents

- Message from the General Secretary: 3
- Communication Rights: 4
  - Digital Communication Rights: 6
  - Gender & Communication Rights: 9
  - Migrants, Refugees & Communication Rights: 12
  - Communication Rights & Indigenous Rights: 15
  - Communication Rights & Climate Change: 18
- Financial Overview: 21
- Funding Partners: 23
- Board of Directors & Staff: 25
- Network & Movement: 27

Front cover: “We are not drowning, we are fighting.” Civil society representatives from the Pacific Islands raise their voices for climate justice and call for policymakers at the UN climate change conference COP27 in November 2022 to take urgent action. Photo: Life on Earth/Albin Hillert
Message from the General Secretary

Philip Lee
WACC General Secretary

At the beginning of 2022, WACC implemented a new Strategic Plan focusing on communication justice issues related to climate, gender, computer-based technologies, forced migration, and Indigenous peoples. At the same time, the devastating war in Ukraine underlined the indispensability of independent journalism and the urgency of tackling disinformation and hate speech in state-controlled media and on social media platforms.

These issues are crucial to democratic life. It is vital, therefore, that WACC works together with our members, partners, and with non-governmental organizations worldwide to remove obstacles to affordable and accessible ways of communicating. Not for nothing is our current motto “Enabling people to be seen and heard.”

Over the past year, WACC has called for more representative media coverage for migrants and refugees, and for ways to build credibility and trust in the digital world. We have worked to strengthen citizen journalism in communities impacted by climate change, to train networks of Indigenous human rights reporters, to boost the digital literacy skills of rural women, and to improve understanding of the pros and cons of an interconnected digital world.

To that end, we began a campaign to translate into as many languages as possible “Principles to promote communication for social justice in a digital age” from the international symposium organized by WACC and several ecumenical partners in 2021.

Looking ahead, WACC is devising an online series of workshops on digital justice – what is it all about? what can ordinary people do? – and a new program studying media representations of violence against women and girls to advocate for policy change. We are also planning online “conversation circles” on major programmatic themes as well as those covered by WACC’s journal Media Development.

As a longer-term goal, in 2025 WACC and many international civil society organisations will bring ethical and rights-based concerns to the next UN-led summit on the information society (WSIS+20). We shall argue that for social progress to take place, due weight must be given to communication rights. WACC’s vision of communication for all is right on point.

In all these endeavours, WACC’s members and partners have a key role to play. You are invited to continue to take part, to speak out, and to work with us to contribute to genuinely sustainable development.

“...it is vital that WACC works together with our members, partners, and with non-governmental organizations worldwide to remove obstacles to affordable, accessible ways of communicating.”

Foreign domestic workers and their supporters demonstrate at the Philippines consulate in Hong Kong in a case that drew international attention towards the vulnerability of migrant workers. Photo: Life on Earth/Paul Jeffrey
A Foundation for Social Justice

“This exchange filled me with energy and wisdom that I will share with the members of my organization. I gained from each experience that was shared, ideas to strengthen our work in the communities.”

—WACC project partner

In October, WACC held a consultation for our project partners in Latin America and the Caribbean. The gathering brought together some 30 organizations that promote communication rights and build sustainable communities in 12 countries. All receive support through WACC’s Communication for All Programme (CAP).

Our partners took an in-depth look at how communications rights lay a foundation for social justice. Each organization shared insights and best practices from their own work for others to adapt and use in their own contexts.

In working groups, the partners drew up action plans for using a rights-based approach to communication to strengthen gender justice, climate justice, digital justice, migrants’ rights, and Indigenous peoples’ rights.

The consultation resulted in a network and actionable strategies to promote communication rights and social justice in the two regions.

Results

- 91% of participants say the consultation will positively impact their work and strengthen their networks.
- 84% acquired at least one new insight for their work.
- 69% expanded their network in a useful way.

Discover More
waccglobal.org/tag/wacc-partner-forum-oct-2022
HIGHLIGHTS

#Disinformation
As the war on Ukraine started, WACC condemned disinformation and attacks on press freedom in Russia and urged information sharing from independent media.

waccglobal.org/wacc-statement-war-on-ukraine-and-media-crackdown-in-russia

#CommunicationRights
In January, WACC unveiled its Strategic Plan for 2022–2026 to guide the organization in its leadership role to advance communication rights in a rapidly changing world.

waccglobal.org/wacc-announces-new-strategic-plan

#LanguageRights
At a panel on archival justice in November, the WACC President told how research on Creole language and culture is being used to challenge discrimination and injustice in the Caribbean.

waccglobal.org/promoting-creole-to-challenge-discrimination-in-the-caribbean

#Afghanistan
As a member of ACT Alliance, WACC joined an appeal to the Canadian government in late January to lift restrictions on humanitarian aid to Afghanistan.

waccglobal.org/act-alliance-urges-trudeau-to-lift-restrictions-on-humanitarian-aid-to-afghanistan

#CommunityMedia
WACC partners in Latin America shared about meeting the challenges for people’s communication and education in a digital age at an event in April.

waccglobal.org/wacc-partners-highlight-digital-challenges-opportunities-for-latin-america-community-media

Discover More
waccglobal.org/news/comment

“In the documents republished [here], readers will be able to find most of the ethical, technical, and practical concepts, including key recommendations and actions, that might facilitate and guarantee communicative justice.”

— Media Development Editor Philip Lee, about the 4/2022 issue “Statements on Communication for a Better Future”

waccglobal.org/new-media-development-issue-offers-signposts-for-communication-rights

Communication Rights Facts & Figures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>WACC staff and members promoted communication rights at the World Council of Churches 11th Assembly</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>WACC “Meet an Expert” appearances in the ACT Alliance Networking Zone at the WCC Assembly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22</td>
<td>Comment pieces published on the WACC website and social media channels</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>public interventions by WACC staff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>64</td>
<td>articles published on the WACC website and promoted on social media</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
“Seeking digital justice is our collective work. [We] have a powerful opportunity to advocate for and help create digital tools and platforms that are safe, accessible, and equitable for all.”

—Digital Justice: A Study and Action Guide

WACC, together with the World Council of Churches (WCC), launched Digital Justice: A Study and Action Guide in November with an online workshop. Our aim is to support individuals and groups in taking three steps to strengthen digital justice: educate, advocate, connect.

The resource unpacks the concept of digital justice and highlights some key issues in our increasingly digital world:

- digital divides
- access to digital spaces
- weaponization of digital resources
- surveillance, censorship, and privacy
- digitality and marginalized peoples

We designed the guide to be accessible and spark curiosity. It can be used individually and collectively to wrestle with questions of how to live justly in a digital age. We’ve included case studies, facts and figures, discussion starters, and suggested readings as a launch pad for further learning and action.

With the guide, we capped off activities this year in our joint digital justice campaign with the WCC. Through the campaign we are working towards the vision outlined by the global symposium in 2021 for communication for social justice in a digital age.

Discover More
waccglobal.org/resources/digital-justice/digital-justice-study-guide
PROJECT
Digital Solutions for Social Challenges in Georgia

Left: Members of the youth media hub in Aspindza, Georgia, plan a campaign to raise awareness about digital misinformation among marginalized groups. Photo: Helping Hand/Shorena Makhareishvili

In a Nutshell

The project trained young people in digital media literacy—to recognize misinformation and disinformation in their day-to-day use of the Internet and social media.

Project participants learned to use digital technology as an advocacy and justice tool. An “ideathon for social change” event challenged the young people to be changemakers putting their training into action to fight disinformation and to create a positive online space in their schools and communities.

Partner: Helping Hand
Country: Georgia
Who: Young people aged 16–29 from ethnic minority and conflict-affected communities

Project Facts & Figures

- 375 young people trained in digital media literacy
- 9,376 people involved directly or indirectly
- 23 of 30 media hubs established in schools and universities continue outreach activities
- 98,986 engaged unique visits on social media and related websites
- 175 young people trained in digital media literacy

“In the era of mass information dissemination, it is necessary to get the right education and share it with others. I believe that youth and adults should learn how to deal with misinformation in order to have a healthy society.”

—Anna, project participant
DigitalInclusion

The 1/2022 issue of WACC’s journal Media Development featured reflections from the symposium “Communication for Social Justice in a Digital Age” co-organized with the WCC.

DigitalTechnologies

In September, WACC joined the Copenhagen Pledge on Tech for Democracy, a global commitment to use digital technologies that promote democracy and human rights.

waccglobal.org/wacc-joins-the-copenhagen-pledge-on-tech-for-democracy

CommunityNetworks

Three WACC partners participated in the 6th Community Network Xchange to share knowledge about and promote community-driven Internet connectivity.

Misinformation

Through a joint WACC project with Canadian Lutheran World Relief, communication students drafted a readers’ charter to combat misinformation in the media.

waccglobal.org/students-draft-readers-charter-in-the-disinformation-age

“The role of social media platforms as propaganda tools needs to be explored thoroughly if freedom of the press is to remain a bastion of democracy, especially in a world that increasingly relies on digital technologies.”

— Media Development Editor Philip Lee, about the 3/2022 issue “Democratizing Communication, Rediscovering Solidarity”

waccglobal.org/new-media-development-issue-focuses-on-democratizing-communication-rediscovering-solidarity

---

Digital Communication Rights Facts & Figures

- 33 language versions of the “Principles for Communication for Social Justice in a Digital Age”
- 6 WACC projects promoting digital communication rights
- 2 WACC regions ran digital justice projects

---

Discover More

waccglobal.org/resources/digital-justice
Rooting Out Gender Cyberviolence

“Online violence against girls and women impedes their participation in the digital sphere and their right to freedom of expression online, among other human rights.”

—WACC North America Past President Glory Dharmaraj, WACC workshop on gender-based media monitoring, WCC 11th Assembly, September 2022

In December, WACC entered a new phase of providing resources to advance gender justice in and through the media: a hands-on webinar introduced social media monitoring as a tool to take action against gender cyberviolence.

The learning event showed how manual monitoring methods uncover microaggressions that remain under the radar of machine monitoring. Participants saw how the new methodology can be used to give a fuller picture of online misogyny, improve machine-based filters of violent content, and guide policy recommendations.

With the webinar, we broke virtual ground for a global, ecumenical gender and media observatory in collaboration with the World Council of Churches (WCC). The joint initiative aims to build an ecumenical, rights-based coalition to gather evidence on gender-based violence content in the media and to advocate for change.
In a Nutshell

The project fellowships taught Anibe and five other female media professionals core skills of data journalism and gender-sensitive reporting. Through targeted training sessions and mentoring, the fellows learned to find, analyze, use, and visualize data on gender, including findings from the Global Media Monitoring Project (GMMP). They wrote a series of compelling, data-driven stories that highlighted gender inequalities and the underrepresentation of women in African mainstream media.

Project Facts & Figures

- 6 fellows trained with support of 93 mentoring sessions
- 36 datasets & 39 data visualizations
- 33,000+ views of stories on media websites
- 300+ shares of stories
- 24 stories published
- 7,000 social media likes and impressions

“The fellowship helped me tell compelling data-driven stories about the underrepresentation of women in the media, turning data into easy-to-understand stories that induce action.”

—GMMP WanaData fellow Anibe Idajili

Left: GMMP WanaData fellow Anibe Idajili. Courtesy photo
BreaktheBias
On International Women’s Day, WACC and the WCC hosted a gender and media roundtable that concluded with a call to break the gender bias and promote gender-just media.

waccglobal.org/international-womens-day-wacc-wcc-pledge-to-breakthebias

ProtectJournalists
Laws must change to protect journalists, especially women, urged a forum in March co-organized by the Global Alliance on Media and Gender (GAMAG), whose secretariat WACC hosts.

waccglobal.org/laws-must-change-to-protect-journalists-says-ngo-csw-forum

FreedomOfExpression
WACC was a panelist at the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe parliamentary session in July on the 2022 Joint Declaration on Freedom of Expression and Gender Justice.

waccglobal.org/no-gender-justice-without-freedom-of-expression-say-un-special-rapporteur-gmmp-coordinator-other-experts

BeijingPlatformForAction
At a conference co-hosted by GAMAG in October, WACC highlighted ways to engage international policymakers and regulations to ensure women’s communication rights.

waccglobal.org/new-gender-deal-for-media-needed-to-ensure-womens-communication-rights

Municipalities
WACC spoke at the policy innovation lab on building sustainable communities through gender-sensitive media and communication at the 6th Ibero-American Summit on Local Gender Agendas in October.

waccglobal.org/municipalities-are-key-players-in-developing-gender-just-media

16DaysofActivism
At the start of the Global 16 Days of Activism against Gender-Based Violence in November, WACC called its members and partners to work to end digital gender violence.

waccglobal.org/wacc-calls-for-action-to-end-digital-violence-against-women

“We have to go beyond the sensitization of media actors […] we have to foster the participation of local communities and civil actors. We have to work together.”

waccglobal.org/put-women-girls-at-centre-of-post-covid-reconstruction-and-news

Gender & Communication Rights Facts & Figures

| 52 | 6th GMMP national reports published |
| 3  | WACC projects promoting gender and communication rights |

Discover More
whomakesthenews.org/news
Changing the Narrative

“It’s a topic we never hear about, the reason why people decide to migrate.”

—Anamê Gnanguenon, Changing the Narrative participant and producer of Women of the Blame (Femmes Coupables), a podcast featuring migrant women

In January, WACC supported our regional networks in Africa, Europe, and the Middle East as they launched the project Changing the Narrative. The pioneering initiative took up a recommendation from our Refugees Reporting project — to develop training that builds capacity in refugee and migration journalism.

Fifteen journalists from the three regions worked in collaboration with NGOs, refugee agencies, and educational institutions, and met with refugees and migrants. They learned to tell the stories of people on the move, create space in the media for their voices, and promote their communication rights.

For their final projects, the participants focused on migration in their own contexts. Their output — stories, podcasts, radio documentaries, and more — gives a creative and fair view of the challenges migrants and refugees face, while helping to change the narrative about people on the move.

Discover More
waccglobal.org/tag/changing-the-narrative
Migrants, Refugees & Communication Rights

PROJECT
Advancing the Rights and Welfare of IDPs through Media Monitoring, Investigative Journalism, and Media-Driven Advocacy

Partner: Journalists for Christ
Country: Nigeria
Who: Media professionals

In a Nutshell
The project equipped journalists to raise public awareness and spur policy action through person-centered coverage about internally displaced people (IDPs).

The media professionals learned about issues IDPs face through first-hand accounts. After receiving training in experience-based and solutions-driven reporting, journalists wrote stories highlighting the hopes, aspirations, and struggles of IDPs. Summaries of the stories are included in “Silent Cries,” a tool for advocacy to advance the rights of IDPs.

“The story of Zara as reported by Mohammed Ali of Hot Pen is novel in that it is a changed narrative in the reportage on IDPs.”

—Project summary about a participant’s story that portrays a young IDP woman as an entrepreneur

Project Facts & Figures

- 2 media consultations with a total of 71 participants
- 2 newly established networks of IDP-supportive journalists in Abuja and Lagos
- 25 participants in webinar on in-depth, person-centered reporting
- 19 stories highlighted in “Silent Cries”
- 8 recommendations for action to advance IDP rights through the media

Left: Child living in an IDP camp in Abuja, Nigeria, after being forced from his home by the Boko Haram insurgency. Photo: Joel Fortune/Shutterstock
Media Monitoring

In May, the WACC North America region conducted its first-ever Migrant Media Monitoring Project that looked at coverage of migration in selected Canadian and US media.

Migrants, Refugees & Communication Rights

Facts & Figures

3 WACC projects promoting the communication rights of people on the move

“Without the ability to exercise their communication rights, migrants are excluded from participating in the public debate and in policy-making processes about issues that directly affect their lives. We must enable migrants themselves to be at the center of public conversations about migration.”

—WACC Program Manager Lorenzo Vargas, International Migration Review Forum side event “Meeting Migrants’ Information and Communication Needs: Grassroots Experiences from Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East,” co-hosted by WACC waccglobal.org/nothing-about-migrants-without-migrants-at-un-event-wacc-partners-stress-importance-of-communication-rights

Ukrainian refugee Alona is interviewed by a television crew at Nyugati train station in Budapest, Hungary, in early March 2022. She fled Kyiv with her mother and young son soon after the Russian invasion began. Photo: Life on Earth/Albin Hillert
Communication Rights & Indigenous Rights

Spotlight on Canada

“It is evident that media continue to perpetuate stereotypes and myths, while ignoring and overlooking Indigenous issues; therefore, infringing our fundamental human rights.”

—Cree Elder Doreen Spence

WACC’s second issue of Media Development in 2022 explores how communication rights, Indigenous rights, and social justice are interwoven in the Canadian context.

In the journal’s cornerstone article, Cree Elder Doreen Spence examines the impact of colonization on communication rights for Indigenous peoples in Canada. She looks at the particular role of the media in excluding and marginalizing Indigenous peoples, with a call for media accountability and for communication to form the core of relationships.

The issue offers complementary perspectives on communication for Indigenous rights:

• Discovering pathways for journalists to overcome under-representation and misrepresentation of Indigenous peoples
• Providing professional training for Indigenous communicators
• Respecting Indigenous languages
• Communicating Indigenous approaches to climate justice
• Using film to educate and change public perceptions

Discover More
waccglobal.org/media-development-2022-2-articles
PROJECT
Contributing to Peace through Radio Production with a Decolonizing Approach

Partner: Educación Radiofónica de Bolivia (ERBOL)
Country: Bolivia
Who: Aymara and Quechua communicators

In a Nutshell
The project equipped Indigenous communicators to use radio to work at dismantling the colonial and racist discourse that divides Bolivian society.

During a six-month training, project participants explored issues of decolonization, interculturality, gender, and communication for peace, and honed skills in radio and digital production. They created radio and social media content that invites reflection on the value of Aymara and Quechua identity and promotes respect for cultural diversity.

Project Facts & Figures

- 34 communicators trained from Aymara and Quechua communities
- 44 pieces of radio and social media content
- 6 talk shows with expert guests

“Not only did we learn intercultural mechanisms, but by sharing between different regions, we have put interculturality into practice.”

—Graciela Dorado, Aymara Satellite Network coordinator

Left: Quechua communicators rehearse their new radio programs.
Photo: ERBOL/Carla Cortez
Communication Rights & Indigenous Rights

Facts & Figures

| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>WACC projects promoting Indigenous communication rights</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1,683</td>
<td>News stories analyzed for representation of Indigenous peoples in Canada</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Discover More

waccglobal.org/tag/indigenous

---

“There is a tendency by non-Indigenous people to assume that the Indigenous community is one and the same, that all peoples share the same way of life, beliefs, and stances.”

—Finding from WACC-supported monitoring of the representation of Indigenous peoples in the media conducted by University of Toronto students waccglobal.org/study-of-how-indigenous-people-are-represented-in-canadian-media-shows-room-for-improvement

---

An Indigenous woman speaks at a march in Atalaia do Norte in Brazil’s Amazon region, protesting a government plan that threatened to destroy a federal program of Indigenous health care. Photo: Life on Earth/Paul Jeffrey
Local Climate Voices

"Indigenous people have so much knowledge and insights about the environment. We are waiting for the government and States to listen to us, to integrate Indigenous wisdom into climate policy."

—Maylau Tamang, WACC partner
Indigenous Television, Nepal, at the SBCC Summit, December 2022

WACC organized an event during the Social and Behavior Change Communication (SBCC) Summit in December. The panel discussion featured voices from local initiatives using communication as an essential tool in climate adaptation.

Four of our partners presented best practices drawn from their experiences of using communication to advance climate justice:

- Community radio network Grupo Comunicarte in Colombia
- Sustainable forestry and media initiative FF-SPAK in Kenya
- Indigenous Television in Nepal
- Anti-erosion and fishing regeneration project PAKISAMA in the Philippines

These WACC partners advocated with Summit participants for communication as a human right and not just as a tool to meet development objectives.

Thanks to their tireless advocacy, this fundamental principle is set to inform future discussions in the SBCC, a global forum where policymakers and civil society actors explore how communication can address climate change and other social challenges.
PROJECT
Climate Resilience Educ-Action Training and Enrichment (CREATE) for Philippines Grassroots Communities

Partner: Centre for Environmental Concerns
Country: Philippines
Who: Farmers, urban poor, Indigenous people, fisherfolk

In a Nutshell
The CREATE project engaged grassroots leaders to develop a climate action curriculum rooted in local and traditional knowledge — a vital tool to support at-risk communities in addressing climate change.

Representatives of vulnerable groups — farmers, urban poor, Indigenous peoples, fisherfolk — trained as CREATE instructors to hold sessions for their grassroots organizations and local communities. A pilot workshop using the curriculum resulted in a phased climate action plan tailored to the local context.

Project Facts & Figures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>curriculum modules</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>grassroots leaders trained as CREATE instructors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25</td>
<td>participants in pilot workshop</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>400,000</td>
<td>members of local communities benefiting indirectly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

“I realized that a fisherman cannot survive without the ocean, and I should unite with fellow fisherfolk to protect our common fishing grounds from the negative impacts of climate change.”

—Participant in CREATE pilot workshop in Bulacan province

Left: A “heads-up” exercise helps participants in the CREATE pilot workshop review core concepts related to climate change.
Photo: Centre for Environmental Concerns
HIGHLIGHTS

#Amazon

At the Amazon Social Forum, representatives from four WACC partners explored regional issues and ways to strengthen communication for climate justice in local communities.

Climate Justice & Communication Rights Facts & Figures

6 WACC projects promoting climate justice and communication rights

“Unless the people leading the fight against the climate crisis on the ground are able to have their stories heard and seen, and unless they have the necessary communication tools and skills to organize, it will be very difficult to generate the political will that will result in swift action to tackle this crisis.”

—Lorenzo Vargas, WACC program manager Communication for Social Change, in Communicating Climate Justice, co-published in 2022 by WACC’s Centre for Communication Rights waccglobal.org/no-climate-justice-without-communication-justice-asserts-new-wacc-ccr-book

Jabeda Begum tends to her rice field in Kunderpara, a village on an island in the Brahmaputra River in northern Bangladesh. Severe flooding from a record monsoon season several years ago eroded the bank, washing away part of her farm. Photo: Life on Earth/Paul Jeffrey
Financial Overview

WACC Global raised $1.87 million in 2022 to fund its programs. Of this, 76% came in the form of grants from our international partners, and the remaining 24% was self-generated from exchange gains, membership dues, hosting fees, and rental income.

WACC’s board, management, and staff remain very prudent financially and did everything possible to minimize cost, while maximizing social impact around the globe in 2022. Program expenses accounted for 80% of the total expenditure for the year, while governance and fundraising costs accounted for 7% and 13% respectively.

Our global members, boards, and staff continue to work closely with our friends and partners to raise funds and to diversify our donor base to ensure the financial sustainability of WACC. With adequate funding and careful management, we will continue to promote communication as an essential aspect of all people’s right to their life and dignity, with full participation in the issues that affect their communities.

Note: Financial figures provided are pre-audit. Audited accounts are available on request.
Income by Source

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Income Source</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Governmental</td>
<td>$ 4,696</td>
<td>0.3%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International Grants</td>
<td>$ 1,419,601</td>
<td>75.6%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Non-Governmental</td>
<td>$ 452,436</td>
<td>24.1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Total</td>
<td>$ 1,876,732</td>
<td>100%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Income by Type

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Income Type</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Grants &amp; Contributions</td>
<td>$ 1,424,297</td>
<td>76%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-Generated</td>
<td>$ 452,436</td>
<td>24%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Total</td>
<td>$ 1,876,732</td>
<td>100%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Expenses by Type

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Expense Type</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Programs &amp; Projects</td>
<td>$ 1,588,029</td>
<td>80%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Governance</td>
<td>$ 138,953</td>
<td>7%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fundraising</td>
<td>$ 258,055</td>
<td>13%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Total</td>
<td>$ 1,985,037</td>
<td>100%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: All figures in Canadian dollars.
WACC thanks all of our institutional funders and individual donors, who help us to promote communication as a basic human right, essential to people’s dignity and community.

The commitment of our supporters enables us to work with those denied the right to communicate, to advocate freedom of information and the press, and to strengthen communicator networks to advance peace, understanding, and justice throughout the world.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Funding Partners</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AMARC Asia Pacific</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Association for Progressive Communications</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Association of Protestant Churches and Missions in Germany (EMW)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bread for the World</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Centre for Communication Rights</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Church of Sweden</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cultural Survival</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evangelical Lutheran Church in America</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FreePress</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International Indigenous Women Forum</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Otto per Mille of the Waldensian Church</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PACMAS</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Primate’s World Relief and Development Fund</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Service Canada Summer Jobs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UN Women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNESCO-IPDC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Church of Canada</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Witness</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World Association of News Publishers (WAN-IFRA)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World Council of Churches</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
WACC is governed by a volunteer Board of Directors that includes representatives of our eight regional associations. The WACC UK Board of Directors has oversight of the global organization, its policies, and priorities, while the WACC Canada Board ensures WACC’s viability and compliance with Canadian regulations.
WACC UK Board of Directors

Embert Charles, President
Stephen Brown, Treasurer
Mathilde Kpalla, Vice-President & Africa Region
Vincent Rajkumar, Asia Region
Ary Régis, Caribbean Region
Alba Sabaté Gauxachs, Europe Region
David Morales Alba, Latin America Region
Rania Rashad William, Middle East Region
Gregg Brekke, North America Region
Netani Rika, Pacific Region
Philip Lee, General Secretary (Ex Officio)
Jim McDonnell, Director Resident in England & Wales

WACC Canada Board of Directors

Embert Charles, President
Stephen Brown, Treasurer
Philip Lee, General Secretary (Ex Officio)
Glory Dharmaraj, USA
Kristine Greenaway, Canada

WACC Staff & Consultants

Philip Lee, General Secretary
Sara Speicher, Deputy General Secretary
Joseph Patterson, Financial Controller
Sarah Macharia, Program Manager – Gender & Communication; Monitoring Rural Poverty Reporting
Lorenzo Vargas, Program Manager – Communication for Social Change
Terri Miller, Communications Coordinator
Gisèle Langendries, Programs & Funding Officer
Shari McMaster, Administrative Coordinator & Board Liaison
Saskia Rowley, Web Design & Communications
Simon Chambers, Director of Communications (ACT Alliance)

Organizational Info

WACC is registered in Canada as a not-for-profit corporation (438311-7) and an incorporated charitable organisation (number 83970 9524 RR0001) with its offices at 308 Main Street, Toronto ON, M4C 4X7.
WACC is also a UK Registered Charity (number 296073) and a Company registered in England and Wales (number 2082273) with its Registered Office at 100 Church Road, Teddington, TW11 8QE United Kingdom.
Network & Movement

WACC’s member and partner networks span eight regions across the globe — a movement of committed communicators and rights activists, both individuals and organizations, who believe in the transformative power of communication rights for all and who defend everyone’s right to communicate and to be in communication without harm to others.

Join us to make your voices heard. Work with us to help advance democratic communications. Speak and act with us to become part of the global struggle for a better world.

Above: Education, including learning to communicate in sign language, is a pathway out of marginalization for deaf children in Hossana, Ethiopia.

Photo: Life on Earth/Albin Hillert
GET INVOLVED
Be a part of WACC

Join.
Become a member of the WACC movement at waccglobal.org/join.

Learn.
Visit waccglobal.org/subscribe to sign up for news about communication rights action, events, and more, and to subscribe to WACC’s journal Media Development.

Advocate.
Find tools for communication rights advocacy and education at waccglobal.org/resources.

Donate.
Support communication rights online at waccglobal.org/donate.

Connect.
Be part of the conversation.

WACC Global
waccglobal.org
linkedin.com/company/world-association-for-christian-communication-wacc@waccglobal

Centre for Communication Rights
ccrvoices.org
@ccrvoices

Global Media Monitoring Project
whomakesthenews.org
@Global.Media.Monitoring.Project
@gmmpglobal
@whomakesthenews

Affiliations

WACC is a member of ACT Alliance
WACC has consultative status with the UN Economic and Social Council